```
mso-pidi-ionu-suyie:normal;}
490
491 p.Q, li.Q, div.Q
492
       {mso-style-name:Q;
493
       mso-style-unhide:no;
494
       mso-style-qformat:yes;
495
       mso-style-parent:"";
496
       mso-style-link:"Q Char";
497
       margin-top:10.0pt;
498
       margin-right:23.55pt;
499
       margin-bottom:0cm;
500
       margin-left:27.8pt; 501
       margin-bottom:.0001pt;
502
       line-height:150%;
503
       mso-pagination:widow-orphan;
       font-size:11.0pt;
504
       font-family:"Arial",sans-serif;
505
506
       mso-fareast-font-family:Calibri;
       mso-bidi-font-family:"Times New Roman";
507
508
       mso-ansi-language:EN-US;
509
       mso-fareast-language:EN-US;
510
       font-style:italic;
511
       mso-bidi-font-style:normal;}
         001----
```

The CSS for the 'Q' style set up in Word. As I say, works great in IceCream ebook reader but this is what I see in Sigil book view (below) even though the text is associated with the Style001.css file.

