The Tortoise, weary of his condition, by which he was confined to creep upon the ground, and being ambitious to have a prospect, and look about him, gave out that, if any bird would take him up into the air, and show him the world, he would reward him with the discovery of many precious stones, which he knew were hidden in a certain part of the earth.

The Eagle undertook to do as he desired, and, when he had performed his commission, demanded the reward. But, finding the Tortoise could not make good his words, he stuck his talons into the softer parts of his body, and made him a sacrifice to his revenge.

< New Yorker201801

the memoir of its real-life protagonist, the drama presents Molly Bloom (Jessica Chastain), a former Olympic skier and an academic star who puts off law school, seeks adventure, and ends up running high-stakes poker games in Los Angeles and New York—an enterprise that gets her arrested and charged with federal crimes. Molly's voice-over, which runs throughout the film, explains the logic behind her practical decisions while also detailing the skills and the wiles of poker players, yet Sorokin narrows her analytical intelligence to superficial flash. The same thing happens to the relationships on which the movie runs—Molly's connection to the attorney Charlie Jaffey (Idris Elba), who warily decides to represent her, and to her father, Larry (Kevin Costner), who pops in like a pater ex machina to resolve complexities superficially. With Michael Cera, as an intrepid movie star, and Chris O'Dowd, as an Irish gambler with a thing for "Ulysses." —R.B. (In wide release.)

The Post
The new film from Steven Spielberg, like his "Lincoln" (2012), is a solidly rousing act of historical re-creation. Meryl Streep plays Katharine Graham, the owner of the Washington Post, with Tom Hanks as its swaggering editor, Ben Bradlee. Most of the story is set in the early nineteen-seventies, at a vertiginous time for the nation and its capital. The so-called Pentagon Papers, obtained by Daniel Ellsberg (Matthew Rhys), unveil a reluctance, on the part of multiple administrations, to inform the public about the true state of the Vietnam War. When the Times is prevented, by legal injunction, from publishing the Papers, the Post gets its chance to step in and continue the job; what will Graham do, given that further revelations will rock the very establishment of which she is such a doyenne? The movie is a little too confident of its own righteous stand (listen to the strenuous John Williams score), but the battle between hesitation and decisiveness is beautifully managed by Streep. With Bob Odenkirk, Tracy Letts, Sarah Paulson, Bradley Whitford, and a lethally smiling Bruce Greenwood, as Robert McNamara. Delicious period costumes, starting with Bradlee's striped shirts, by Ann Roth.—A.L. (12/18 & 25/17) (In wide release.)

The Shape of Water
When it comes to many-layered tales, Guillermo del Toro is no novice. But even the fantastic beasts of "Pan's Labyrinth" (2006), stalking against the backdrop of the Spanish Civil War, could not prepare us for the wild jostling of genres in his latest film, which is set at the peak of the Cold War. Sally Hawkins plays Elisa, who is lovelorn, unabashed,

ROCK AND POP

Musicians and night-club proprietors lead complicated lives; it's advisable to check in advance to confirm engagements.

Ja Rule
No criminal charges have so far been filed against Ja Rule, born Jeffery Atkins, who is a defendant in some of the civil cases brought against the ill-fated Fyre Festival. Rule was a partner in the luxury-get-away festival, which was beset by bad weather and poor planning last spring; the concerts never happened, and attendees were left stranded on an island in the Bahamas, some having spent thousands of dollars on tickets and travel. These days, live performances likely keep Rule's mind off of his legal woes. The rapper was a gruff mainstay on pop radio at the turn of the century, during his three-year run of smash singles, including "Livin' It Up," "Put It on Me," and "Between Me and You." He revisits these heavy hits and more this week, on the same day as a scheduled hearing date, Variety reports. (B. B. King Blues Club & Grill, 237 W. 42nd St. 212-997-4144, Jan. 4.)

The Killers
The Killers rocketed to fame with their 2004 debut, "Hot Fuss," glistening with synthesizers and irony, and their knack for mixing classic rock with eighties-inspired dance music became an instant trend. After two more catchy LPs, "Sam's Town" and "Day & Age," and relentless touring, the band members decided, in 2010, to take a break to pursue solo projects. But the allure of the crowds proved too powerful, and the Las Vegas foursome returned in 2012 with "Battle Born," a radio-ready album of pristine arena rock. This September brought "Wonderful Wonderful," the band's first record to reach the No. 1 spot on the Billboard chart; they set out on a major tour this January, with an early stop in Brooklyn. (Barclays Center, 620 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, barclayscenter.com, Jan. 9.)

Mall Grab
At twenty-three, Jordan Alexander, also known as Mall Grab, is keyed into the lo-fi sounds and the out-of-nowhere loops that make young crowds shed their cool and dance. "It's such an issue these days," he told the d.j. outlet Mixmag. "A lot of people aren't willing to just enjoy themselves and focus on the moment—instead, they're Snapchatting and propulsive Batucada samba with nervy, tribal post-punk. The composite style is wholly unique, and well worth checking out at the new venue Elsewhere, which has been bringing an expert curatorial eye to the edge of Bushwick. (599 Johnson Ave., Brooklyn, elsewherebrooklyn.com, Jan. 6.)

RJD2
In 2003, the rapper Jay-Z released the vocals to "The Black Album" without the beats: an a-cappella album meant for musicians to remix in their own image. This produced, most famously, "The Grey Album," a mashup of Jay and the Beatles. Elsewhere, fifteen compositions by the underground producer RJD2 were used for "The Silver Album," a delightful relic of the illegal file-sharing era and the early days of the concept mixtape. Ramble Jon Krohn came of age in Columbus, Ohio, and by the early aughts he was releasing cerebral instrumentals that raked odd soul and funk records for nerdy samples. Fringe rap acts like Cannibal Ox and Aesop Rock tapped him for remixes, as did admen at Saturn, Adidas, and Wells Fargo—his instrumental "A Beautiful Mine" served as the theme for "Mad Men." (Brooklyn Bowl, 61 Wythe Ave., Williamsburg, 718-963-3369, Jan. 3.)

JAZZ AND STANDARDS

Ali Jackson
Drummers, Miles Davis once said, can make good composers—this engagement by the longtime drummer for the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra might make a reliable testing ground for the theory. Jackson, who also finds room for jazz classics in his repertoire, will front a quartet that includes the guitarist Peter Bernstein and the bassist Omer Avital. (Dizzy's Club Coca-Cola, Broadway at 60th St. 212-258-9595, Jan. 5-7.)

Harold Mabern
A Memphis-born transplant who has retained the bluesy filigree of his home town in his fluent bop-and-beyond improvisations, the respected veteran Mabern will be inviting a slew of guests to the stage during this engagement, including the saxophonists Eric Alexander, Vincent Herring, and another Memphis hero, George Coleman, as well as the trombonists Steve Turre and Steve Davis. (Smoke, 2751 Broadway, between 105th and 106th Sts. 212-864-6662, Jan. 1-7.)
